

LOCAL LIONS CLUB TO BE ORGANIZED BY BUSINESS MEN

On Wednesday evening a number of Daly City business men listened to a very interesting address by Arthur Brookwell, international organizer of the Lions Club. Mr. Brookwell spoke at some length regarding the need of such a club in Daly City, in order to create the community spirit and good fellowship that is absolutely necessary in the building up and development of all community centers.

He outlined the objects of the club: To promote the theory and practice of the principals of good government and good citizenship; to take an active interest in the civic, commercial, social and moral welfare of the community; to encourage efficiency and promote high ethical standards in business and professions. Provided that no club shall hold out as one of its objects financial benefits to its members. And many other vital points of great interest to our community were dealt with.

C. W. Evans, president of the San Francisco Lions Club, and P. S. Nelson, secretary, William Unmack and J. J. MacDonald, of San Francisco, also outlined the plans of the Lions Club and the great benefits that can be derived from such a club when made up of real live and energetic members.

After the various addresses were heard, Mr. Brookwell called upon the Daly City business men present to voice their opinions on the forming of such a club in this community, and after some discussion it was finally decided to form a Lions Club in Daly City. Neil O. Best, principal of the Jefferson Union high school, being nominated as president of the club.

All those present were very enthusiastic over the club, and they were assured of its success by the members of the San Francisco club.

Among those present at the meeting were A. L. Stockton, Neil O. Best, Dave Campbell, William Haerdter, Thomas Beeson, J. J. Fahey, C. B. Rich, Dr. W. J. Lanthearne, George Henry, A. Vireno, E. Micco, William Sweetney, J. Sommerkamp, R. Rolf.

MAN ATTACKED WITH CHISEL AND BADLY INJURED

As the result of a clash between two Daly City men last Saturday, one is in the hospital and the other confined in the county jail, awaiting the outcome of injuries he is alleged to have inflicted upon the other.

Anton De Vica, aged 32, a carpenter, is in the hospital as the result of the encounter, and Mario Maratta, aged 37, a bricklayer and De Vica's brother-in-law, is the man charged with attacking the injured man.

It seems that there had been bad feeling between the two men for some time. Last Saturday, Maratta armed himself with a revolver, it is alleged, and went out in search of his brother-in-law. He found De Vica constructing a home at 20 Coma street, immediately adjoining his home. De Vica was talking to the contractor when Maratta approached. The latter is alleged to have leaped upon his brother-in-law's back and attempted to choke him. De Vica shook his attacker off, and then his assailant is said to have picked up a concrete chisel, with which he proceeded to rain blows upon De Vica's head, while the latter feebly attempted to protect himself, according to bystanders. Workmen separated the men and disarmed Maratta.

Breaking away from the workmen who had seized him, Maratta leaped into an automobile and sped away.

City Marshal Doyle was informed of the attack and immediately began search for Maratta, he being finally captured in Colma by Marshal Doyle and turned over to Sheriff McGovern at Redwood City.

De Vica was taken to the hospital, suffering from severe cuts and bruises about the head, received when he was struck by the chisel wielded by Maratta. His condition was pronounced serious by the attending physicians.

LOSS OF MAN'S BOOT CAUSES ARREST ON GAME CHARGE

Rubber boots, one of which got stuck in the mud and had to be abandoned, proved the undoing of Louis Gori, of Colma, who was brought into Justice Ray Griffin's court at Redwood City on charges of possessing non-game birds. Gori, sighted in a field near Colma by Game Warden Jack Burke, attempted flight, got stuck in the mud, abandoned one mired boot, led the chase again for half a mile, hid in a gully and was finally captured. The warden charged that he was using "bird-lime," a glue-like substance, for the illegal capture of songsters.

Community Builders A FRIEND INDEED

DR. ROY W. CASEY

Dr. Casey is a native son of California, having been born in San Francisco, a member of a pioneer San Francisco family. After high school days were over in 1913, he went to work for a wholesale concern for awhile and later embarked in the automobile business via the sales department of a down town agency.

He was preparing for a medical education when Uncle Sam put out his call for troops in 1917, and he joined an ambulance company, where he was kept fairly busy for the following eleven months before receiving his discharge at the Presidio in 1919.

In 1921, he began the study of Chiropractic at the California College of Chiropractic, but after six months transferred to the West Coast Chiropractic College at Oakland. During the time he was with this school he gained experience and helped defray expenses by acting as night orderly in a hospital.

After graduating in 1925, he stayed with the school as an instructor and house manager and at the same time taking a post graduate course in physiotherapy. In September, 1926, he came to Daly City, where he opened his present suite of offices in the Eagles' building.

Dr. Casey has been especially successful here from the very start, and has a large number of patients who testify to his skill in his profession. The office is equipped with the latest devices for administering chiropractic and electric therapy as well as all other forms of drugless healing. Many are just learning that he successfully treats acute ailments as well as the chronic cases and affords quick relief.

The Doctor is unmarried, kind and tractable. He says his face is one that only a mother could love, but we present it here for your inspection. He might be mistaken.

EARLY ACTION ON HIGHWAY MEASURES

Early passage by the state legislature of the Breed bills for completion of the state highway system, the gasoline tax and fund allocation measures, is forecast since word has gone out from Governor C. C. Young that additions to the system at this session of the legislature will not meet with executive approval.

The Senate committee on roads and highways has not sent out a single bill to add any roads to the present system, and indications point to a continuation of this policy, it is reported. A few such measures have been reported out by the Assembly committee, but in view of the Senate attitude it is apparent they will not reach the governor.

Offering a permanent solution of California's highway financing and administration problem, the Breed bills do not add a single mile of highway to the planned system, it is said. Senate Bill No. 3 provides a one cent additional gasoline tax to finance a twelve year program of construction, and No. 518 provides for the classification of highways and allocation of funds.

A vote in the Senate on the Breed bills may be expected in the next ten days, it is believed, the delay for this period being necessitated by the attorney general's ruling that the budget bill must be adopted before the highway measures.

DISCUSS MEASURES REGARDING VETERANS

The legislative committee of the American Legion, of which George J. Hatfield of San Francisco is chairman, is to meet in Sacramento, Sunday, March 20, to discuss with the soldiers' and sailors' committee of the Assembly proposed legislation effecting the welfare of war veterans of California. Several bills relative to the veterans are now pending before the legislature.

State Commander John F. Slavich has also summoned to this meeting five vice-commanders, Paul Reimer, Chico, W. W. Breite of San Francisco, E. M. Howard of Visalia, Harry E. Inley of Los Angeles, and Wilbur Getty of Santa Ana.

BAY SHORE EXTENSION TO BE OPENED SOON

An extension of the Bay Shore highway from Redwood City to Menlo Park will be opened to the public within a month, it is announced by members of the State Highway Commission. Right-of-way for the road has already been secured and the grading of the road will be started early next month. The road will be covered with gravel in order that the motoring public may be able to travel safely. As soon as funds are available the road will be macadamized. The money will probably be secured next year. The Dumbarton vehicular bridge will be directly connected with Redwood City and Palo Alto by this road. It will be 125 feet wide.

Perata, Noble Grand Arch and chairman of the pageant committee.

OBSERVANCE OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEEK IN APRIL

By a proclamation made public this week, George L. Jones of Nevada City, Grand Master of Masons of California, has designated the week of Monday, April 26, 1927, for the eighth annual observance in California of public schools week.

Originally instituted as a Masonic function with programs held in lodge rooms, the celebration has become of such widespread interest that the same procedure will be followed this year that was adopted last year of having the entire public participate. Meetings, wherever practicable, will be held in auditoriums and public schools and addressed by speakers of note on problems pertaining to the schools.

The purposes of public schools week are set forth in the proclamation of the Grand Master as follows:

"The challenge of childhood is eternal; and the nation is ever confronted with the demand that every child shall be assured his rightful heritage of an education appropriate to, and commensurate with, the demands of the age in which he lives. We have sought to answer that challenge by the creation of a purely American institution — the public school; and of all our American institutions this is the most useful and the most deserving of public support."

"As is true of every human institution, it is of course far from perfect; and there has never been a time when it has not been subject to criticism."

In so far as that criticism is intelligent and constructive, it is to be welcomed, and should be encouraged; but in so far as it is destructive and designedly hostile, it is to be deplored, and should be vigorously combated by every friend of our public school system. To combat that destructive criticism, to bring about desired improvement, and to preserve that faith and confidence in the institution on which its perpetuity and usefulness depend, there must be close contact between the public and its schools, together with free and open discussion of all questions involved. That is the aim and purpose of public schools week."

The state committee in charge of the week's activities will be announced shortly.

HOLE-IN-THE-WALL BANK DANGEROUS

The National Association of Credit Men recovered practically $400,000 from fraudulent failures during the past fifteen months, and convicted 122 commercial crooks.

This is a very small proportion of the losses by frauds, which are estimated to be $250,000,000 a year. But the effect is good; the losses might have grown enormously, if these 122 professional operators had not been jailed, and others restrained through fear.

Some people still say, "I'm afraid of banks," and keep their money on their person or hidden about the place, to bring the footpad or murderer, or to be lost by fire or their own death. The losses from the old-sock and hole-in-the-wall banks are more than all those from credit frauds, bank failures and all breaches of trust; and the loss of life is a thousand times greater.

It is not prudence to hide money away; it is sheer idiocy.

COURT TO DECIDE ON MEMORIAL HOME

The California State Supreme Court has issued a writ of mandamus, returnable April 5, ordering the acting chairman of the Alameda county board of supervisors to show cause why a tract of land bordering on Lake Merritt in Oakland should not be turned over to the war veterans for the establishment of a $250,000 memorial home.

Dr. John F. Slavich, State Commander of the American Legion, acting for the Alameda county veterans' organization, filed the petition in the friendly legal battle between Alameda county supervisors and the veterans over the transfer of the land. There is a bill before the legislature which if passed and signed by Governor Young, will permit both city and county to join hands in erecting veterans' memorial buildings.

FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

In a suit for divorce filed at Redwood City by Mrs. Emma Landuyt, wife of Adiel Landuyt, a longshoreman residing in Daly City, the charge is made that, her husband called her names and broke up the furniture on numerous occasions. The complaint asserts that they were married at Kansas City in 1922, and separated last January.

MILLBRAE SEEKS PERMISSION FOR SANITARY ZONE

Plans for the organization of a sanitary district in Millbrae were revealed last Monday when a petition, signed by William Beguhl and others was filed with the county supervisors, requesting the establishment of such a district without delay. The petition urged action to provide an outfall sewer and sanitary sewers throughout Millbrae Villa Tract, and asked that the territory to be embraced in the district include all the land in Millbrae from the Market Street Railway Company's tracks to the Skyline boulevard, and a right-of-way for the outfall sewer from the tracks to the bay.

The board referred the matter to County Surveyor George A. Kneese to check up on the advisability of the formation of such a district. Kneese will make his report on March 21.

At the request of Surveyor Kneese the board instructed County Purchasing Agent Wender to ascertain the approximate cost of printing the county map recently completed by the surveyor and his staff.

A petition was presented to the board of supervisors, urging them to maintain the highway from Princeton to Granada in its present location. At the suggestion of Supervisor Manuel Francisco, action in the matter was postponed until April. Francis stated that he had made temporary repairs along the road and that the matter could best be determined after the heavy rains had ended.

Attorneys Ross & Ross filed a petition requesting the abandonment of certain roads near Granada now on the lands of Giovanni Petroni and Dante Dianda. Hearing in this matter was set for April 4.

Supervisor Hickey moved that the office of "assistant purchasing agent" be created at a salary of $100 per month. The matter was laid over for one week at the suggestion of Supervisor Thompson.

The salary claim of Roscoe Wyatt, as manager of the County Chamber of Commerce for the month of February, in the sum of $200, was laid over until next meeting.

A communication from the Southern Pacific Company called the attention results which "Boulevard Stop" signs at railroad crossings had accomplished in other communities.

A letter from the State Board of Health stated that the tuberculosis subsidy of $840.44 had been paid by the state to the Community hospital.

Soft drink licenses were granted to M. J. Peirs of Willow road and V. Drago of Colma.

During the afternoon session Chairman MacBain was called to a meeting of the Social Service Commission and Supervisor Rosalie Brown filled the chair during the remainder of the session.

POLICE ARE OUT TO SQUELCH CRIME

War was officially declared upon all violators of law and order when police officers met in a body at the Burlingame city hall and organized the Peninsula Police Officers' Association. Police Officer Jack Theuer of Burlingame was elected temporary president, and R. C. Lawrence of Palo Alto, temporary secretary and treasurer.

Co-operation among the police officers of the peninsula cities is to be the keynote of the organization. Its formation was brought about through the initiative of the officers themselves, and is an organization apart from that entered into by the chiefs of the various forces. The formation of the association marked the opening of a new drive on lawbreakers on the peninsula, with special attention given to the study of crime, its prevention and methods of detection.

FACES DISSOLUTION OF INCORPORATION

The new city of Belmont faces dissolution of its municipal incorporation, voted last October, if plans of John W. Bourdette, attorney and a prominent land owner of the district, are successful, it was learned with the announcement last Wednesday that Attorney General U. S. Webb has granted permission to Bourdette to bring suit for voiding the incorporation proceedings.

Shortly after the incorporation of the city by a special election on October 18 of last year, Bourdette protested the proceedings on the ground that acreage held by him had been included in the incorporation area without his consent, as required by law. Application was made to the attorney general for permission to bring suit testing the legality of the proceedings under which the city government was organized.

Civic Weakness That Too Many Absorb Political Ideas From Ignorance

By DR. ARNOLD BENNETT HALL, President University of Oregon.

MOST of us get our political convictions out of our own ignorance. And the utilization of unsound political convictions is one of the methods employed by the demagogue. The larger part of the public has as many political convictions as a dog has fleas and where they are picked up nobody knows. Unsound convictions are developed by the process of suggestion, by reiteration. If we see anything often enough we believe it. The tyranny of an established phrase is another factor forwarding the demagogue's progress. Streamer headlines in newspapers often are the only information persons have concerning a political situation. Frequently they don't know what the words or phrases mean, but they use them freely because they are on every tongue. Audiences, listening to a dynamic, clever "demagogue," will allow their whole thinking to be controlled by one thought, somebody else's thought that they think is their own.

The solution for the present evils of the political situation lies in the process of education. Civic training in the school should be taught along the same lines as football, by daily active practice, not by studying, reading and listening to lectures on the history and workings of the government.

Only through intelligent thinking can demagogues be dethroned, and shorn of their power.

Relativity Theory Offers Humanity Key to the Solution of God and Existence

By PROF. FILMER NORTHROP, Yale University.

Science is entirely ineffective in the explanation of the universe. Its bases are mass and energy, both of which are perpetually changing.

The realist conception of life is equally unsatisfactory. To it the world is only that which the eyes can see, the body feel and the ears hear. It doesn't go beyond the senses.

The theory of relativity defining the universe in mathematical terms does, however, give humanity a weapon with which to solve existence and God in terms that never change.

It places the universe on the basis of pure reason—on the basis by which Plato was able to reach an understanding of life and of God. When people grasp this theory and the fourth dimension, both requiring transcendental reasoning, they will have come close to the secret of the universe.

Science is only second or third hand knowledge, while by reasoning one can get at pure knowledge itself and at God. The theory of relativity and its mathematical foundation being pure reason, common understanding of the universe may be reached by both the disciple of science and of religion.

As science is taught now, no student can leave a university with his faith in a social God still intact. Present-day science leads only to madness.

No Notable Progress Made in the Intellectual Capacity of Mankind

By EDWIN GRANT CONKLIN, Princeton University.

The progressive evolution of man has ceased and whatever change is taking place at the present time is retrogressive. It is the opinion of many students of the subject that no modern race is the intellectual equal of the ancient Greek.

Evolution, either temporarily or permanently, has halted. Since the beginning of recorded history there have been few and wholly minor evolutionary changes in the body of man, but what changes have taken place have been retrogressive. Chief among these are the decreasing size of the little toe and perhaps a corresponding increase in the size of the great toe, decreasing size and strength of the teeth; and probably a general lowering of the perfection of sense organs. The changes are mainly degenerative ones due to the less rigid elimination of physical imperfections under conditions of civilization than in a state of barbarism or savagery.

There has been no notable progress in the intellectual capacity of man in the last 2,000 or 3,000 years and even in the most distant future there may never appear greater geniuses than Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Shakespeare and Newton.

United, Earnest Effort Necessary for Solution of Problems of Peace

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING.

Recapture of the spirit of eager and united effort which came to the top of American life during the World war would equip the nation with its most effective weapon in solution of the problems of peace.

The evils of lawlessness, of political corruption and of careless citizenship can be overcome and put to rout if the American citizen will vote with the same energy and ingenuity he manifested in wartime. The downfall of the United States will not be far off if the time ever comes when public offices can be virtually bought and sold, either directly or indirectly.

If we could have armed and equipped even half a million men and sent them to France early in 1917, the probabilities are that the war could have been won that year.

Man, not armaments, is the trouble maker. We must work for peace by developing the mechanism of peace in a businesslike fashion.

Modern Young Person Can Be Relied On to Assume the Tasks of Tomorrow

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

They are very shrewd, these young people of ours. They see through you very clearly, very accurately. They are usually very just and very reasonable when you take them as individuals. They can detect with amazing certainty insincerity and hypocrisy. If you are fair and square with them they'll be for you no matter how severe you are.

It is pretty completely a waste of time—yours and theirs—to give them advice unless they ask for it. The skillful man will inveigle them into asking.

I have come to have in my 25 years of work more and more faith in the young person. Under the thin veneer of his cynicism and sophistication there is a genuineness and a sincerity and a seriousness upon which I feel sure we can depend. The young person of today is not going to take lightly the tasks of tomorrow.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

An exploitation in new lines of agriculture has been tried at Perris this year with a fair measure of success. The Pennsylvania Macaroni company of Pittsburgh, a wholesale concern, this season leased the 200-acre ranch in Perris Valley known as the Mountain Valley Ranch upon which to raise lettuce. The land was planted and favorable weather conditions brought the lettuce to early maturity. About twelve cars of choice quality stuff were shipped to New York and other eastern markets where it brought a fancy price. Then Imperial Valley and other sections began pouring their lettuce on the market at a price that would not justify harvesting. The crop was held back for a better price that did not come.

The old frame building at Napa, in Main street, near Third, built nearly sixty years ago, and long a landmark in that part of the city, is being razed to make room for a new fire-proof store building, to be erected by the owner of the property. In its early years the old building housed a cannery and barber shop. The tearing down disclosed that the building was without studding, and that its roof was supported only by upright boards which formed the sides; a typical construction of pioneer days.

Californians will soon have an opportunity to see what the first state capitol building looked like. The quaint little two-story adobe structure with its characteristic Spanish piazza in which the first California legislature met December 15, 1849, in San Jose, will be reproduced as faithfully as possible for the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of San Jose to be held in conjunction with the annual Fiesta de las Rosas at that city, April 30 to May 7.

Grand opera, jazz and lectures over the radio are delivered to the cows and hired men of John Gallazzi, Modesto dairyman, while the "bosses," are being milked every evening. So thoroughly does Gallazzi believe in radio that he has "radioized" his dairy. A plug-in has been established in his barn and when it comes milking time the radio is turned on. He maintains that the music makes the cows give their milk down freely and keeps his men in good humor.

California is severely scored for failure to complete her interstate highway connections in superior California in a resolution introduced into the Oregon State Legislature recently. The annual spring flower show of Placer county will be held at Auburn, April 29 and 30, according to the announcement of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Richard W. Townsend Post No. 84, American Legion, which is sponsoring the affair.

One hundred dollars in prizes will be distributed among homes of the Lindsay district which make the greatest improvement in a given length of time, according to plans of the Lindsay chamber of commerce at part of a city beautiful campaign.

Robert Lindgren, Woodville, has just completed the pulling of his grapes, preparatory to farming the land to alfalfa or grain. Lindgren has been unable to sell his table grapes the past two seasons, and considered his ground and time wasted.

The Los Angeles Creamery company is making improvements amounting to about $100,000 at its plant in Tulare, including installation of an expensive powdered milk plant, construction of new machine shops and installation of new power units.

When Miss Ann McGoldrick of Petaluma, deputy in the office of the county clerk at Santa Rosa, becomes clerk of Department Two of the Superior Court she will be the only court clerk of her sex in the state in the belief of the court attaches.

The Generals' Highway into Giant Forest, Sequoia National Park, will have to remain closed for a short time, according to Superintendent John R. White. Slides occasioned by the recent heavy rains and snows have been numerous. As far as Hospital Rock, nine miles inside the park line, the road will be kept open.

Goose Lake, Modoc county, is assuming its old-time form. Reports brought in by ranchers of the district are to the effect that the lake is now fifteen miles long and five miles wide, and promises to become even larger before the rainy season is over. Last summer it had dwindled down until it was a mere remnant of its former self.

The silver cup offered by the Lodi District chamber of commerce as first prize in the annual Tokay grape growing contest was again awarded to Peter Joens, making two consecutive wins for Joens. James T. Langford was second and Ed Preszler third prize. In arriving at the percentages, three lots of grapes are taken from each vineyard, and of each lot a part of the grapes were held in cold storage here, a part sent to the University of California, and the other portions were examined after arrival at New York. The highest percentage was used as a basis for awarding the cups.

Doings of the Legislature

Sacramento.—The two outstanding features of this legislative session so far have been the effort to pass the Felton Syndicalism bill, and the efforts to defeat the various measures for the reforming of the Criminal code. The fight against the first measure resulted in an overwhelming victory. The committee having the bill in charge—the Judiciary—tabled it unanimously; and as that committee is the largest in membership of any committee the bill is dead for this session at least. The criminal reform measures are being opposed by those attorneys who make a specialty of criminal practice and who see in the reforms proposed and the removing of many technicalities upon which they now rely to secure acquittals for their clients, a great loss of business. The governor, however, is known to favor the reforms and in this session that practically means their passage is secured.

As an evidence of that last statement we have the measure to reorganize the state health department. This bill is an effort to take the department entirely out of politics. The tenure of office of the members of the board is definitely fixed, and the possibility of a cleaning out of all the members when an administration change is done away with. All sub-departments relating to public health are brought directly under control of the board. Its secretary is given $6,000 a year, and the per diem of the members of the board is eliminated. The passage of the other department bills is assured and then the heads of the various departments will form a sort of state cabinet, meeting with the governor in council to regulate the affairs of the state. It is anticipated that the result will be a great saving in expense.

The measure suggested and drawn up by the registrar of voters of San Francisco providing for permanent registration has also met with favorable action by the lower house, and there is little doubt of its passage by the senate. When it becomes a law, it will be necessary to register only once during your life. When you move you must notify the registrar in the county where you lived, and in the county where you are going if you are going to move from one county to another. If you move your residence, while still keeping it in the same county you must notify the registrar of the county. Biennial registrations are abolished and no great registers will have to be printed. That will save big printing bills it is claimed, and the employment of many hundred persons as registrars. It is estimated that the bill saves the state as a whole $500,000, the greater part of course, in the cities.

A bill that is being opposed by all those interested in homes for the Aged, Masons, Catholics, Protestants and several benevolent orders proposed to place the homes, for some unknown reason, under the Insurance Commissioner, who is to inspect them and watch over them. As the commissioner's office is supported by fees from the insurance companies he examines, it follows that if he took charge of the homes for the aged they would have to pay him fees for his services as there is no fund out of which he could be paid. As all such institutions are now under the control of other state bodies, why it is proposed to add the care of the insurance commissioner is not clear.

Amendment No. 2, as it appeared on the ballot last November, providing for the allocating of special taxes levied on highway transportation companies under the same plan as that employed in allocating gasoline taxes, has been given active force by a measure which the assembly enacted unanimously and the senate endorsed and which the governor has signed. It provides for 4 1/2 per cent tax on the fares collected from passengers and 5 per cent on the money collected for the transportation of freight.

The bill by Assemblyman Van Bernard, providing that the black current is a nuisance and providing for its destruction has passed. The assembly has also passed a bill authorizing the state department of agriculture to seize and destroy any agricultural importation found to contain any noxious weeds or their seeds. The department already had that power when the importation contained any destructive worm or insect, and this new bill simply extends the same power over plants.

The legislature has passed a bill eliminating from the laws governing coroners inquests the requirement that the jury must view the body of the person whose death they are investigating.

The various members who have local road bills, however, are bringing strong pressure upon the Highway committee to pass them out, and if they reach the governor to let him veto them if he so desires. They can claim the credit of having passed them and make the governor "the goat" for their not becoming law. The committees do not want to displease their fellow members by refusing to pass such bills and killing them in committee and therefore, several have been reported out and are on their way to the governor.

Secrets of a French Chef

From a village in France, where I was born, I brought some years ago to this country a secret. My great-grandfather, grandfather and my father were all eminent and famous pastry chefs in France, known the country over, famous because of their delicate, appetizing and delicious pastries, cakes and desserts. They catered for most of the celebrated affairs given.

The secret that I brought over with me was a formula of a delightful Marshmallow in Creme form. The first known instance of pairing in the congress of the United States was in 1840. The resolution was never voted upon and the practice became very common.

LINCOLN'S ELEPHANTS

Few persons, perhaps, know that Abraham Lincoln at one time had a herd of twelve elephants on his hands. He did not exactly have them in his possession, but they were offered to him, and it took all the tact for which he was famous to gracefully decline them.

The letter in which he turned down the proffered gift has only recently come to light, according to a writer in the Pathfinder, who relates that the elephants were presented to President Lincoln for the United States government by the King of Siam, as a token of his friendship toward this country. Lincoln's letter to the king was written on February 3, 1862, and contained this paragraph:

"This government would not hesitate to avail itself of so generous an offer if the object were one which could be made practically useful in the present condition of the United States. Our political jurisdiction, however, does not reach a latitude so low as to favor the multiplication of the elephants."

Lincoln's reference to his lack of jurisdiction over warm latitudes is given point by the fact that the South was not then under Federal control, and illustrates the subtle humor which often characterized his utterances.

HAND-TO-MOUTH BUYING

Hand-to-mouth buying is here to stay, according to leading authorities in the world of commerce and industry. By that it is meant that merchants no longer stock up on large quantities of goods as they did in pre-war days. The same is true of purchasers of machinery and tools.

Strange to say, it is held by these same authorities that careful and conservative buying is a good thing for business in the long run. There is less waste in merchandise which goes out of style and in tools and machinery which become obsolete.

Moderate stocks carried by local merchants make financing easier and distribute the demand for money throughout the year, resulting in the economical and uninterrupted use of a moderate volume of credit.

Increased production and transportation facilities have made it easier for manufacturers to fill orders, thus removing the necessity for placing large orders a long way ahead.

In the matter of machinery and tools, the possibility of new inventions and improvements tends against the accumulation of large surplus production. E. F. DuBrul, leading manufacturer, recently said:

"So many superior designs have been brought out in the last five years that mechanical experts agree that nearly every type of machine tool built up to 1921 is now definitely obsolete for fast production."

All these factors have simplified the problems of the consumer and retailer, but have correspondingly increased the hazards of manufacturing.

CAPTURES PARIS AT 10

Yehudi Menuhin is his name. He was born in San Francisco ten years ago of parents who came from Palestine. Three weeks ago he captured Paris—with his violin.

Before leaving his native America last month he had played as soloist with symphony orchestras in San Francisco and New York, where he had been acclaimed loudly as a youthful virtuoso.

But Paris! Think of a youngster of ten years creating a furore in that sophisticated artistic capital of the world! But little Yehudi Menuhin did just that.

Blase Parisians critics, after hearing him play the solo parts of Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole" (Spanish Symphony), under the baton of Paul Paray, conductor of the world-famed Lamoureux orchestra, compared this American boy with Mozart as a musical prodigy. After his performance men and women rushed to the stage to embrace him, amid deafening cheers from the entire audience. His mother had difficulty in keeping him from being crushed by his admirers. Police had to aid his exit from the place.

Now he will go to Brussels to study under the great master, Eugene Ysaye. If his life be spared, Yehudi Menuhin may one day rank with the greatest violinists of all time.

WATER POWER PROGRESS

Water wheels in power plants in the United States showed a capacity of 11,721,000 horsepower at the beginning of this year, according to a late government report, an increase of 544,000 horsepower during 1926. Approximately three times as much water power is being produced at present as was produced in 1910.

California leads in the amount of waterpower developed, with New York second, and Alabama third. Waterpower now constitutes a little more than one-fifth of the total power generated by prime movers in the United States.

Steady growth in waterpower development for many years seems assured, and with the great increase in steam plant capacity continually being made, no one can predict the enormous amount of power that will be available to the people of America a few years hence.

That the use of electric power will become general in farming as well as manufacturing operations within the next two or three decades can hardly be doubted, and it is probably in this direction that the solution of agricultural problems may be found.

TWO U. S. COLLEGE GIRLS

Many young girls from the Orient are educated in American colleges. They come from China, Japan, India and everywhere. Two of them are just now of particular interest because of the civil war in China.

One is the former Pao-yu Tang, captivated daughter of a Chinese statesman of great wealth. She graduated some years ago from Barnard College, New York, and has been described by a noted portrait painter as "small, poised, sophisticated, cosmopolitan, elusive." She married Vi-Kyun Wellington Koo, former Chinese minister to the United States and now foreign minister at Peking, where she reigns as the "cosmopolitan aristocrat of feminine China." But her husband's party is sorely beset just now.

The other, demure little Chung-ling Soong, chose Wesleyan College at Macon, Georgia, as he alma mater. Her quiet, womanly ways appealed to another great Chinese statesman, and she became the wife of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, father and first president of the Chinese republic. As his widow she is today idolized by the Nationalists, whose arms have recently met with much success.

Thus two American college girls are the leading feminine figures in official circles of the opposing factions now struggling for mastery in the land of Confucius.

RESPECT THE FORESTS

"Forest Week," originated in the Northwest, is fast becoming of national significance. The last of April will probably be designated as such this year. The big object is to interest everybody in the forests as friends, partners, pals, protectors. Fire fighting, wood using, tree planting, forest recreation, all come under the general purview of Forest Week.

The forests employ hundreds of thousands throughout this country; they fill the harbors with ships, the freight yards with loaded cars; they build homes and business all over America—even though no tree may grow within 100 miles of farthest user out on the arid plains. The forests conserve the birds, the river waters, the health of the nation. Last year almost 3,000,000 people visited the national forests of the two northwesternmost states.

Colma News Notes

Mr. and Mrs. George Ashbury, of Lawndale, are the proud parents of a baby boy, born last week at St. Luke's hospital.

The Eighth grade of the Jefferson school, accompanied by the teacher, Miss Trainor, and Professor W. J. Savage, hiked up Mt. Tamalpais on Thursday.

The Colma Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a whist party this Saturday evening, March 12, at the Jefferson Hall, San Pedro avenue. A good time is assured all who attend.

Mrs. M. P. Henderson is having her home refinished and the yards replanted. All the hedges in front are being torn down.

The many relatives and friends are very glad to greet Mrs. C. Benedetti and baby daughter Katherine, who are now able to be up and around.

The ground in front of the American Monumental Works is being excavated for the breaking of the "bottle-neck." Work everywhere on this new addition to the highway is progressing slowly, due to the heavy rains during the past month.

A special meeting was called for last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Henderson, in order to prepare for the big booster whist party to be given by the Girls' Club of Colma on Saturday evening, March 19. Plans were made for decorations and the amusements to be provided at this big whist.

Next Saturday evening, March 19, the Girls' Club of Colma will entertain at their annual whist party and dance in the Colma Community Center building on Dunk street. The game will begin at 9 o'clock sharp, as refreshments, games and dancing will be the main features during the remaining few hours. A jolly good time can be looked forward to, as the Girls' Club of Colma surely know how.

Mrs. C. Stewell, nee Irene Hoffman, of Railroad avenue, Colma, is the happy mother of a fine baby son, who was born last week. Mrs. Stewell, who was one of the first graduates of Jefferson Union high school, is very well known and popular hereabouts. Their numerous friends congratulate the young couple. Business at the present time calls Mr. Stewell to spend some time down south. Mother and Donald Carl are reported doing nicely.

Last April when the king of one of the largest Gypsy tribes in America died at Colma, and was buried in Mt. Olivet cemetery, the tribe went into one year of mourning. During this time they are ruled by the older men of the tribe. Now that the end of the year is drawing near, they must select a new king. According to Gypsy custom, the selection must be held as near the burial place of the last king as possible. Already they are beginning to assemble, and are camped on the grounds known as Millett's Auto Camp. By April it is expected there will be several thousand present. As the tribe is scattered, they come from all over the United States, always driving a high grade auto.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Franzoia, of Price street, celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary and Leroy Franzoia's fourteenth birthday, on February 8. Those who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Franzoia, Leroy, Joseph, David, Franzoia, Mr. and Mrs. L. Re, John, Andrew and Evelyn Re, of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. Fisco, Angelo and James Fisco, of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. R. Brunelli and Marjorie Rose Brunelli, of Niles; Miss Josephine Schnitzer, of San Francisco; Louis Varni, of Colma; Mrs. J. Calangino, John Calangino and Adele Calangino, of San Francisco; Victor Stauffer, of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. T. Molinari, Evelyn, Thelma and Dorothy Molinari, Mrs. A. Conti, Gladys and Louise Conti, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bertetere, John Pessagno and Joseph Casella, all of Colma. Mr. and Mrs. J. Franzoia and son Leroy received many beautiful presents. Supper was served at 10:30. After supper, singing and dancing were enjoyed. Music was furnished by Delaways. All present report having had a wonderful time.

AN ENJOYABLE OUTING

Providence is always kind to the Jefferson schools. The elements may rage for a whole month and even until the very day set for an outing. Then the skies clear, the kind sun comes forth, and like on Thursday last a trip is made to Mount Tamalpais, and all who take part are favored with a great day of pleasure.

This time the Eighth grades of Colma were the ones who had no fear of weather or anything else. About a score of them constituted the jolly party, girls and boys. They were accompanied by District Superintendent W. J. Savage, who enjoys such trips as much as any one. He says that is the way to forget a lot of affairs not worth worrying over. They left Colma at 8 o'clock on the street car and were soon at the ferry, although the car did seem to go very slowly. Then the bracing trip across the bay, followed, for variety, by an electric train ride to Mill Valley, where the sun was shining, giving great encouragement.

After checking unnecessary clothing, the climb to the top was begun with enthusiasm. The first part is so easy it just seems to invite effort. As the ascent is continued it gets harder and rougher until the heart-breaking final course which tries the staying quality of even the most daring.

However, with patience and persistence everyone reached the top in triumph as usual.

At the beautiful new inn the management was gracious and the children, being considerate, were given considerable freedom which was appreciated. They then ate their own lunches, drank a generous indulgence of root beer, and played for an hour or so.

Then all were ready for the wonderful descent down the railroad track to West Point Inn; from there along the pleasant pathway to the amphitheatre, where "Rip Van Winkle" is played; then down through Rattlesnake Canon, by a series of beautiful waterfalls, into the shadowy depths of Muir Woods, and last to where the sunshine falls on Joe's Place. Joe was not there, but one friendly man received them kindly and ministered to their wants. One more climb, then down the hill, and Mill Valley was reached once more.

Pleasantries over evolution inspired the coinage of a new word, "Fundamoney-ist," in Minnesota, where an anti-evolution bill was introduced. Bishop Charles Edward Locke of the Methodist church had said: "This whole anti-evolution business is getting tiresome; it has no more to do with personal religion than the Pons Asinorum" (fifth proposition of Euclid.) Then the antics called the good bishop a "Fundamoney-ist."

In certain places, at least, the boot-legger's overhead is something fierce. Sworn testimony in a case tried in New Jersey developed that in order to land a cargo at a certain port it was necessary to bribe the mayor, chief of police, two detectives, a police sergeant, a customs inspector, a dock owner, and thirteen others, twenty in all, each of whom got a rake-off at so much for each case of liquor landed.

Miss Carol Dempsey, of Knox College at Galesburg, Ill., won over all the 350 co-eds there in a horseshoe pitching contest.

MOTOR INSURANCE LAWS

The practical results of the new Massachusetts compulsory automobile insurance law, which became effective the first of the year, will be watched with interest by the public throughout the country.

Many arguments have been advanced for and against such laws. Those favoring them contended that compulsory insurance is necessary to protect the public from irresponsible drivers, who would be unable to pay damages, even though a judgment against them was secured. Those who oppose believe that they will tend to make drivers more reckless, through a feeling that the insurance company must pay anyway.

It appears that insurance company executives generally take the latter view. While the law will increase their volume of business, they seem to fear that the number of claims may also increase in disproportionate extent, with consequent loss to the companies.

Inasmuch as only a practical trial will demonstrate the actual effects of compulsory insurance legislation, the Massachusetts experiment may be welcomed as providing an actual test.

CAN AFFORD TO BUILD

The increase in wages and the still greater decrease in prices of commodities during the past six years are cited by Secretary of Commerce Hoover in his recent annual report as demonstrating "one of the most astonishing transformations in economic history." This he attributes to elimination of waste and other contributing factors.

Earnings of the potential home builder have increased; cost of building materials have decreased.

Since 1920, union wage rates have increased 39 points; general wholesale prices have decreased 76 points.

Since 1923, union wage rates have increased 17 points; general wholesale prices have decreased 4 points.

Since 1923, frame house materials at retail have decreased from 198 in 1923 and 206 in 1924, to 195 in 1926.

Since 1923, wholesale prices of building materials have decreased from 188 in 1923 and 182 in 1924, to 174 in 1926.

STRAW IS VALUABLE

According to George H. Harrison, a leading industrial chemist of St. Paul, a ton of good wheat or oat straw has a potential value of $250. He is said to have obtained from a ton of straw about 1,600 pounds of useful products, including roofing and damp-proofing paint, a fly spray and a new germicide considered effective by the Mayo brothers, famed surgeons.

Although not yet economically practical, it is possible to produce from straw a gas capable of running automobiles, while many other products of value may be derived from it by destructive distillation.

Mr. Harrison believes that when the various processes for utilizing it have been perfected, the straw will be more valuable to the farmer than the grain that grows on it.

RINGING OF TELEPHONE BELL ROUTES ROBBERS

The ringing of a telephone bell recently balked a robbery that might have netted the burglars several thousand dollars' worth of silk stockings. Just as he was about to ring the 2 o'clock safety bell, the night watchman of a silk mill in New Jersey was seized by two masked men, bound and gagged. The burglars had just finished collecting a quantity of valuable silk stockings when the telephone bell rang. Thinking it a burglar alarm, the two men dropped the booty and fled.

The judge smiled and informed the man that there sat behind him five nice looking attorneys, any one of whom might inform him. The prisoner turned about and with a long, scrutinizing look studied the faces of Attorneys Price, Murphy, Schulte, Geske and Davidson—then turned to the judge and said: "Judge, I plead guilty."

STORY FROM THE START

While despondent over the enforced hiding of her fiancé, Jim Dallas, slayer in self-defense of Homer Parkinson, member of an influential family, Sybil Saunders, popular actress, is engaged to play Viola in a charity performance of "Twelfth Night" on Gull Island, on the Maine coast. After the play, which is a big hit, Walter Shine, official photographer, learns something of the jealousy existing in the company.

The photographer shouldered his camera and went toward the house. He skirted the side balcony, the wide-flung doors giving a glimpse of an entrance hall, and turning the corner emerged upon the land front of the long capacious building. Hayworth showed across the channel in a clustering of gray roofs from which smoke skeins rose straight into the suave rose-washed sky. The water rushed between, a swollen tide, threads of white dimpled eddies, telling of its racing speed.

The door on this side of the house opened directly into the living room. No hall within or porch without interfered with the view; the path ended unceremoniously at the foot of two broad steps that led to the threshold. On the lower of these steps Shine found a lady sitting smoking a cigarette. This was the Maria of the cast. Mrs. Cornell in private life. Shine had found her as easy as himself, good humoredly loquacious and not involved in the prevailing discord. An admirable person to clear up mysteries. He sank down beside her on the step and took the cigarette box she flipped toward him.

"Wouldn't you think," she said, "a man as rich as this Driscoll would fix up round here better?"

Shine, who had artistic responses, had long learned not to intrude them on the uninitiated.

"I guess he liked it wild," he suggested, and lit a cigarette.

Shine had been in the grove of pines, a growth of stunted trees filling in a hollow. He had followed the path through it, up the slope to the summer house and beyond to where the bluff dropped away in a sheer cliff to the channel. They called the place "The Point" as it projected beyond the shore line in a rocky outthrust shoulder, gulls circling about it, water seething below. He looked there now, let his glance slip along the curve of headlands till it reached the two girls, perched on a boulder like a pair of bright-plumaged birds. He was thinking how to approach the matter in his mind, when Mrs. Cornell went on:

"I don't see what anyone wanted to build a house here for—cut off this way. It's too lonesome. With the tide at the full as it is now you can't get ashore without a motor boat. You know that current's something fierce."

He looked down at it, its rushing corded surface purple dark:

"Looks to be some current."

"It would carry you out and 'Good night' to you. Gabriel who runs the launch told me. Set's right out to sea some way. And the rise and fall to it—I couldn't tell you how many feet it is, but you'll see for yourself tonight if you're awake—all the channel bare, nothing but rocks and mud. And across the middle of it to Hayworth, a causeway. That's the only way you can get ashore at low tide. High or low you're pretty well marooned. It's seclusion, all right, if that's what you're after."

Shine was after information and with the talk running on tides and causeways he saw no chance of getting it. So he tried to divert the garrulous lady:

"That's Miss Saunders and Miss Tracy out there looking at the sunset."

Mrs. Cornell answered with emphasis:

"Yes, they're friends."

"Aren't you all?"

"Some of us knew each other before we came here," was her cryptic reply. Then she added pensively: "Six months ago you'd never have found Sybil Saunders looking at a sunset. She was the brightest thing!"

"Awful misfortune that what happened to her."

She gave a derisive sound at the inadequacy of the word:

"Hah—awful! Took the heart right out of her. If you ever saw a girl in love it was she—bound up in him. Everything ready, the wedding day set, the trousseau made." Tears rose in her eyes and she dove into her tight-fitting bodice for a handkerchief. "Never to be worn, Mr. Shine—that's life."

Shine gave forth sympathetic murmurs and Mrs. Cornell, dabbing at her eyes, furnished data between the dabs:

"Two men drinking too much and then a fight, and before anybody knew, murder. If there hadn't been a brass candlestick near Jim Dallas' hand it would never have happened. Honest to God, Mr. Shine, there was nothing evil in that young man. But the Parkinson family are camped on his trail. The evil's in them, if you ask me, with their rewards and detectives."

"I wonder if she knows where he is."

"I guess there's more than one wondering that," the lady murmured.

Shine looked at the page's figure on the rock. She carried the thing stamped on her face. He had noticed it particularly where he had taken the photographs of her in the living room. Once or twice the mask had been dropped and he had seen the drooping lines, the weariness, and something like fear on the delicate features.

For a space they smoked in silence. Round the corner of the house the tall figure of Stokes strode into view. At the sight of them he nodded, walked down to the wharf and dropped on a bench.

Shine lowered his voice:

"What's the matter with him?"

Mrs. Cornell met his eyes; her own were narrowed and sharp.

"What makes you think anything is?"

"His whole makeup—something's wearing on him."

She blew out a long shoot of smoke and, watching it, murmured:

"Yes, it's out on him like a rash. He's crazy about Sybil, if you want to know what's the matter with him."

"Oh!" It came with an understanding inflection, the haggard glances rising on Shine's memory.

"Can't hide it, doesn't want to hide it. There's no shame in him, tracking after the girl. And it's not as if he got any encouragement. She can't bear him; that's why she has Anne Tracy out there, afraid if she sits alone five minutes he'll come loping up. You'd think if he didn't have any pride he'd have some feeling for his wife. She's half crazy with jealousy, burning up with it. These purple passions are all right in books, Mr. Shine, but believe me they're not comfortable to live with."

"I felt it."

"I guess you would, it's in the air. All of us cooped up in this place where you can't get off. Sybil and Joe Tracy ready to fight at the drop of the hat and Flora going round in circles and Stokes like one of those fireworks that starts sputtering and you don't know whether they're going to explode or die on you. I tell you I'll be glad when we get out of here tomorrow morning."

There was a footfall in the room behind them and Mrs. Cornell turned to see who was coming.

"Oh, Flora," she said, "Come out and take a look at the sunset. It's something grand."

The woman stepped out and stood beside them. She had changed her costume and her narrow blue linen dress outlined her too slender figure. Shine thought she would have been pretty if she had not looked so worn and thin. He noticed the brightness of her dark eyes, brilliant and quick moving as a bird's. There was red on her cheekbones, a flushed patch that was not rouge. Mrs. Cornell's expression recurred to him, "burning up"—the meager body, the hot high color, the dry lips resolutely smiling, suggested inner fires.

"Yes," she answered, "it's a wonderful evening."

"Take a cig," Mrs. Cornell offered the box.

"Sit down, there's plenty of room," Shine moved up.

"No, I can't sit down. There's something about the air that makes you restless—too stimulating, maybe." She raised her voice and called to her husband, "Alec, aren't you coming in to change your clothes?"

Without moving, the man called back:

"Not yet. There's no hurry."

She turned to Shine with a little condoning air of wifely tolerance:

"Mr. Stokes has been shut up so long in town he can't get enough of the fresh air."

"He's enjoying the scenery, too," Shine answered, and saw her eyes travel to the two figures on the rock.

"Oh, that of course—that's the best part of it." Then in a tone of bright discovery: "Why, look where Anne and Sybil are! Have they been there long?"

"Ever since I've been here," Mrs. Cornell's voice was more than soothing, blithely reassuring as the voice of one who tells a child there is no ghost.

"And ever since Mr. Shine got through the pictures! Wallowing in the beauties of nature like the rest of us."

"Won't you wallow, too?" Shine indicated the long unoccupied space on the step.

She shook her head:

"I like moving about. Something in this place gets on my nerves, it's like being in a jail." On a deep breath she shot out, "I hate it," and stepped back into the room.

"Going?" Mrs. Cornell veered round to follow her retreating figure.

"Yes. I enjoy the scenery better when it hasn't got people in it."

They looked at each other; a still minute of eye communication.

"She's all worked up," he murmured.

Her answer was to point to the two girls and then to Stokes:

"Now she'll keep her eye on them from somewhere else—probably the side piazza. That's the way you are when you're jealous—the sight of it kills you and you can't stop watching."

"Lord!" whispered Shine into whose life no such gnawing passions had entered. And he thought of the girl in the page's dress who was afraid to sit alone, and the man on the wharf brooding within sight of her, and the woman who was hovering round them like a helpless distracted bird.

CHAPTER II

The launch was on its way back for those of the actors who were leaving. Gabriel, squatting by the engine, calculated the distribution of his time. After he'd taken them across he'd have his supper and then go back for Joe Tracy, who was leaving on the seven-fifteen for his vacation. When Joe was disposed of, Gabriel was to meet two Boston sports who had engaged him for a week's deep-sea fishing at White beach, twenty-five miles down the coast. It was a strenuous program for the old man and he grumbled to himself about it, the grumbling gaining zest by anticipations that some of them would be late. By the time he drew near the island he had grumbled himself into a state of irascible defiance against anyone who would dare upset his plans.

To warn them of his coming he sounded the whistle and its shrill foot acted like a magic summons. A group of men, bearing suitcases and bags, emerged from the entrance and ran down the path, Bassett following.

Gabriel quieted down—they were all ready and waiting—and then saw Joe Tracy come round the corner of the house in his Sebastian dress. The old man muttered profanely—why wasn't the d-d cub getting ready? And as the boat made its landing, he called out:

"Say, you'd better be gettin' them togs off. I'll be back here for you at a quarter to seven."

The boy, leaping lightly from rock to rock, grinned without answering. The picturesque dress suited him, he looked almost handsome, and with the feathered cap on his golden wig set rakishly askant, he moved downward with a taunting debonaire swagger. Gabriel didn't like him, anyway, and now his impudent face, framed by the drooping blond curls, looked to the launch man malignantly spiteful.

But Gabriel wasn't going to go till he'd made things clear. He appealed to Bassett, whom he had privately sized up as the only one of the outfit who was like the rational human males of his experience. Besides he had seen that Joe Tracy respected, if not feared, the director:

"I'll be back here at quarter to seven for the Tracy boy, and I'm tellin' him he's got to be ready. I can't waste no time settin' round waitin' and if he's not here on the dot—"

"That's all right," Bassett put a comforting hand on his shoulder and turned to Joe. "You heard that, Joe?"

The boy answered with his sneering grin:

"What's got the old geezer? Does he think I'm as deaf as he is?"

Gabriel's weather-beaten visage reddened. He was not in the habit of being called an "old geezer" and he was not deaf. But the actors, all in the boat, were clamoring to start. They had a train to make—get in, ancient servitor, and turn on the current. In a chorus of farewells the boat chugged off.

The three men left on the wharf went up the path to the doorway where Shine and Mrs. Cornell had resumed their seats. Shine was struck by their difference of type—if you went the world over you couldn't find three more varied specimens. The only one he liked was Bassett, something square and solid about him and a good straight look in his eyes. And he'd a lot of authority—the way he managed this wild-eyed bunch showed that.

Material Needed to Make Up Square Meal

The familiar expression "a square meal" may be adapted to represent a complete diet supplying all the material that the body needs, say R. H. A. Plimmer of the University of London and Violet G. Plimmer in Hygeia Magazine. The center of the square is filled with the fat, carbohydrate, mineral salts and water; the corners are filled respectively with vitamins A, B and C and protein P.

The corner A represents both the fat soluble vitamins A and D, which are found in the same foods. Foods from the same corner may be used alternatively, but a food from one corner is not a substitute for one from another corner. A square meal consists of food from all four corners in suitable proportions.

Some of the foods in the A corner are butter, cod liver oil, milk, egg yolk and liver; in the C corner are fresh fruits, especially citrus fruits, tomatoes and green vegetables either raw or very slightly cooked; the B corner contains whole meal cereal products, dried peas, beans and lentils and nuts; corner P includes meat, eggs, milk and cheese and fish.

Talent Not to Be Hidden

There is no man so humble as not to have received some legacy, some talent, which properly developed will be valuable to himself and a blessing to his fellows. Every man owes it to himself and his fellows to make the most of his talent.—Critt.

Shaded Fringe Is Favored in Paris

Diagonal Line Also Much in Limelight and Makes a Charming Gown.

Once upon a time it was a heart-breaking thing to belong to the fringes of society. This season no society is complete without a great number of fringes. All Paris is using them and America is beginning to follow suit. Vionnet, Chanel and Molyneux are among the creators who are retiring to the cloistered recesses where they dream great things, and return with fringes developed in a way lesser geniuses never thought of. Who but Chanel would have evolved shaded fringes? And how strikingly beautiful they are! Two-toned and all ombre effects are so well thought of this season that printed fringes naturally follow the mode. A stunning dinner gown of valencia blue flat crepe has the skirt of shaded blue fringe, with a cleverly arranged scarf, edged with fringe.

Scarfs, by the way, to achieve smartness today must be related to the costume. A scarf which is merely there because it is there is passe. One model has a bertha collar of fringe across the front, with a scarf effect of fringe at the back.

Vionnet's masterpiece is a gown of Grecian type, straight and slim and very simple in effect. This is the aim of all smart houses—to give a slim, simple silhouette and still be exceedingly elaborate in detail. Again we find shaded fringes, this time in rose, used for tier after tier, narrower at the top and some 12 inches deep at the hem. Nothing else but fringes compose these tiers. You can easily vision the shimmering, slinky movements of the wearer.

The diagonal line is very good this season. And this is where fringes are at their best. Two tiers drawn diagonally across the skirt, with a third forming the bodice from one bare shoulder to the hip, is a recipe for a very up-to-the-minute and daintily charming gown. If black is the color chosen, the bracelets may be of emeralds, which are the reigning stone of the season. And if enough bracelets are used, no other color relief need be had, although one such model has a slender line of green used as a girdle.

Very, very fine plaitings are being used a great deal this season. These are frequently so closely done that one must look twice to be sure they are not fringes. Tiers either of plaitings or fringes are greatly favored, perhaps with a determined effort to get away from the kick plaits of so many seasons.

It is somewhat of a shock to find fringes used even for sports costumes. A trim little model with a bloused upper portion is done in rose marie crepe, with a fringed skirt. Another, of the new allée, has 10 inches of fringe over each hip. Certainly no hint of stiffness or lack of freedom here.

One decidedly clever move, if we are to have fringes for sports, is the fashion of turning the edges under. This not only stops fraying, which the best of fringes will indulge in, but it gives a weight which is invaluable in holding them in place.

Tricotine Crepe-Paper Flowers—Boutonnieres

Like all accessories of present mode, the boutonniere which milady wears on the lapel of her coat or the shoulder bouquet on her frock, is expected to either match the costume or to artfully contrast it, so as to add "the touch that tells." Making one's own corsage bouquets is the latest fad among women who are deft at handicraft. These tricotine crepe-paper flowers, as they are called, are as handsome as the expensive tinsel and metal flowers one buys. Wherever metal and fancy dress fabrics are sold, there one also finds French silver or gold tricotine, which is really a transparent tinsel tissue. The idea in brief, is to stretch this cobweb-like glittering tricotine over each double-folded strip of crepe-paper, before working it into petals and leaves.

Sequin Wraps

Flashing with a myriad of lights is a new evening wrap made entirely of silver sequins. The lining is of pink velvet and there are collar and deep cuffs of white fox.

Newest Sports Frocks Made of Two Materials

Charming new sports frocks are made of two materials. Dorothy Sebastian, the motion-picture actress, wears this frock with a skirt of brown and tan stripes and a blouse of tan. Girdle, cuffs, collar and pocket trim are of the stripes.

"Black Attitude" Smart, Says Fashion Writer

"The smart eccentricity of the present season is black, carried to its dismal limit. It is now being carried to a so far unknown extremity. It produces an intensely dramatic effect, which no amount of color can surpass. Black hair, real or dyed, a white face, eyes visibly made up and scarlet lips, are sticking with the black gowns, perfectly plain and supermodern in cut, which many women seem to wear morning, noon and night."

"Eccentric black should always be low in neck and short in skirt, ultra-fashionable in style and worn with flesh hose and very high-heeled sandals. Uncut emeralds, unrelieved by diamonds, are especially effective on dull black, while ropes of pearls are entirely out of the picture."

"Not to change one's style of dress from one year to another is one of the characteristics of 'black attitude.' Black crepe is worn in the morning and black crepe in the evening; the difference is imperceptible."

Baron de Meyer, who is associated with the Paris bureau of Harper's Bazar, says the afternoon gown is passing out in favor of the sports costume and is now "hardly considered chic even in the afternoon. Sport clothes are smart at all times—are considered suitable for almost all occasions; at tea, for instance, at the Ritz."

Subtle Coloring Used in Chic Tone Effects

Midseason fashions may be said to act as guide-posts to future modes. Especially is this true of models designed for the South, for as everyone knows a fashion that establishes itself at any one of the smart resorts is pretty sure to have a fairly long life. It usually lasts through the summer.

Simplicity, albeit it is simplicity of a most sophisticated degree, is the salient point of interest in these new fashions. Colors are delightfully subtle, with much importance attached to certain lighter tones of blue and green as well as a soft, flattering rose tint. Much white will be worn in the South this season as well as new beige tones and an occasional shade of light gray. These latter colors with few exceptions appear in two or three-toned effects.

Fine hemstitching and ladder work as well as faggoting are forms of needlework which contribute the exquisite touch that distinguishes these new frocks. Both the one and the two-piece models are shown and the choice is purely a matter of individual preference. Another decorative detail is the use of complicated plaitings.

Coats of Suede Cloth Serviceable, Stylish

Costs of suede cloth combined with matching fur are extremely chic. A mole-colored suede coat, for instance, is covered so completely with mole fur trimming that only a three-inch border of the suede fabric outlines collar, cuffs, fronts and hemline. Another cloth and suede model combines a blouse of brown caracul with sleeves and skirt of brown suede cloth.

Old Bows in New Places

The bow of ribbon has always been a sartorial medium of expression since the days of the crusades. It has never gone out of fashion but it has wandered considerably for a while. Its latest resting place is on the backs of patent leather evening pumps. Huge wide bows are attached at the back of each heel.

Felt Berets Use Two Shades

Berets, close-fitting models, feature two tones of felt in sharply contrasted colors. The darker tone rests against the hair. These are hats particularly adapted to short, close coiffures.

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Express Agent's Troubles

The express agent at Freeport, Pa., sympathizes with his predecessor who had the trouble with the pigs, remarks the Boston Globe. A coon dog was ordered by a Freeport man on a 15-day free trial, and the express clerk was instructed that the money should not be sent to the breeder until the end of the trial period. By mistake the money was sent. The man decided that he didn't want the dog and the breeder decided that he wanted the money. The agent became the dog's custodian. Then a few more yards of red tape were spun when the dog gave birth to 13 puppies.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE LITTLE THINGS

THERE is reluctance among many of us to accept at face value the intrinsic worth of little things, which in some way or another have an intimate bearing on our happiness.

If we will stop for a moment in the bustle of our frenzied existence, when our brains are cool and in condition to receive impressions and retain them, we will perceive how trifles often affect our attitude toward our fellow beings.

A sharply spoken word, suddenly flaring up between life-long friends has been known to foment an enmity that endured till death.

A little thing, to be sure, but tremendous in result.

A falling apple led Sir Isaac Newton to the discovery of the law of gravitation.

A caress and kiss from his adoring mother made Benjamin West a great painter.

Lincoln's famous speech at Gettysburg, November 19, 1863, comprising only 265 words, stirred the whole world by its sublime eloquence and its touching appeal to human hearts.

Large fortunes have their beginning in the saving of dimes.

The trusted bank clerk starts his ruinous career by little pilferings.

It is the little things that often take us to the heights, or to the valleys.

The commonplace mite in the end becomes the overpowering mammoth, and leads us gayly to good or evil.

Give serious thought to every word and act, to habits in the forming, to our deportment, our duty to one another, not forgetting duty to ourselves and those dependent on us.

To disentangle the different emotions that enmesh us, when we come face to face with the overwhelming deluge of little things, is indeed difficult, but if we go about our duty seriously and earnestly, we shall see our way clearly.

The road to success or failure will be well defined, and we shall know which direction we are taking.

Let us hope that we will not make a pitiful job of it. Let us make certain that the faults that almost overcame us in the beginning are no longer feared, and that we are now climbing the hills to a good and useful life, singing as we go.

Mother's Cook Book

God thought to give the sweetest thing in His almighty power To earth and, deeply pondering What it should be one hour, In fondest joy and love of heart He moved the gates of heaven apart And gave to earth a Mother.

DESIRABLE DESSERTS

DURING the cold months steamed puddings and those rich in fats are more suitable and appetizing than in warm weather. Indian puddings rich in suet are enjoyed.

Betty's Pudding.

Take one and one-half cupsful of flour, one cupful each of brown sugar, suet, raisins, currants or prunes chopped, grated carrot, grated potato, one-half of a grated orange peel, one grated lemon peel, one-half grated nutmeg, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one teaspoonful of cloves. Mix and steam three hours.

Cherry Pudding.

Beat one egg, add one-half cupful of milk and one-fourth cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of melted butter, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and one cupful of cherries, steam for an hour and a half. For the sauce add equal parts of whipped cream and cherry juice with sugar and almond extract to taste.

Date Pudding.

Beat two eggs, add one cupful of sugar, the same of walnut meats and dates, one teaspoonful of baking powder, the same of vanilla, three tablespoonfuls of flour, three tablespoonfuls of milk. Bake in a slow oven for forty minutes. Serve with whipped cream.

Peach Custard.

Arrange alternate layers of cake and sections of canned peaches in a dish, cover with boiled custard. Bananas, sweet oranges or preserves all are good.

Tapioca Pudding.

Cook one tablespoonful of minute tapioca fifteen minutes, add a pint of milk, dissolve a tablespoonful of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water, add one-half cupful of sugar and the beaten yolks of two eggs. Pour over stewed dried peaches and one-half of a sliced banana. When cool stir in one-half cupful of whipped cream.

Foamy Sauce.

Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one cupful of powdered sugar gradually, one beaten egg, salt, flavoring, beat well and add one cupful of whipped cream.

SOME PICTURES

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I'D LIKE some pictures I could hang in our new house, but where to go to find the artist I don't know. He'd have to understand the gang. That used to play around the creek—

I'd like a portrait made of Mick. The freckled boy who made us smile. But Mick has wandered many a mile, and all the kids I knew of yore Who hung around the harness store.

I'd like a picture of a horse. A certain horse—no noble steed And yet the finest horse, indeed, I ever saw—raw-boned, of course, But that's the horse I used to ride Around the old-time countryside. I'd like to have a picture of That one-eyed peltier that I love For wife to hang above the fire Beside the portrait of her sire.

I'd like a picture of our barn, Our old red barn, to deck the wall, And our old house—but best of all Was that old barn where many a yarn Was spun, where many a dance was held, And pop was there, and peanuts shelled.

I'd like a painting of the place Our brand-new drawing room to grace, When 'round about the young folks prance, To bring me back a good, old dance.

I'd like some pictures, but the wife, I don't suppose she'd stand it, though. She says, "I wish you wouldn't, Joe, Keep telling folks of our old life. You know we've left that all behind."

And that's the saddest fact I find. I'd like some pictures, but I guess, The only ones I will possess Are just the pictures memory's art Has hung within my lonesome heart.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

TOUCHING THE DEAD

IN MRS. BERGEN'S "Current Superstitions" appears the following communication: "I have noticed at funerals of the aged that when elderly people passed by the casket they would touch the forehead of the dead person. I was confident there was some superstition connected with the act because the same look was apparent on every face; but on being asked why this was done they pretended it was bidding an old comrade good-by. At last one told me that it was that they might not dream of the dead or see them."

It would be interesting to know how widespread this superstition is. It is probably more general than most people imagine. People who "hold by" such superstitions are apt to be extremely reticent about them when talking with "unbelievers," partly from a fear of ridicule and partly because of that feeling which causes certain savage people to "hold his fetich from the white man's gaze apart."

The superstition in question is patently a survival of that most ancient belief in the power of the touch. A good example of this is the custom of touching for the king's evil, alias scrofula, which was practiced by the English monarchs down to the time of Queen Anne. Homer tells us how, some four thousand years ago, Agamemnon "touched the chiefs and steeled their manly souls." Look over the long list of definitions in the dictionary of the word "touch" and see how nearly all of them have in them the idea of the exertion of a mental or spiritual power by the toucher over the touched. It is an idea of primitive man who appears to have conceived a sort of magnetic spiritual fluid flowing from the finger that touched. When we touch the dead, as in the superstitious practice mentioned, we exert the power of the "touch" over their disembodied spirits to keep them away from us.

Mrs. Furtado Makes Rapid Recovery

Sacramento Woman Suffering From After-Effects of "Flu," Nervous Exhaustion and Run-Down Condition, Recovers Perfect Health. Thanks Tanlac

The experience of Mrs. Mary Furtado, living at 2915 24th St., Sacramento, Cal., should be of interest to everyone suffering similar ailments.

When Mrs. Furtado was only 22 "flu" left her in a badly run-down condition. "I was in such a weak condition," says Mrs. Furtado, "that I couldn't do a thing. I was awfully thin, had no appetite whatever, and was so weak that I couldn't do my housework. My nerves were in a terrible state, everything worried me and I felt some days as if I would go to pieces."

"Tanlac certainly proved to be just what I needed. I not only gained 15 pounds in weight, but that tired, run-down feeling left me completely, my appetite improved wonderfully and the nervousness all disappeared."

"I never felt better in my life than I did after taking Tanlac. I could do my housework and I felt just perfect."

"Whenever I feel the least bit run-down or tired I always go back to Tanlac, for it never fails to build me right up."
